

The Walcker organ of the Luisenkirche Berlin/Charlottenburg

The Walcker organ from the Berlin Luisenkirche is for sale because of a new purchase.

It is a mechanical slider chest organ with an electro-pneumatic register action.

The instrument was built in 1967 and has 24 sounding registers, distributed over 2 manuals and pedal.

In 1989 the instrument was taken to Schuke/Potsdam overhauled and partially rebuilt. Since then, the instrument has been regularly maintained and tuned.

The organ has a total width of 7.10 m and a height of 4.50 m.

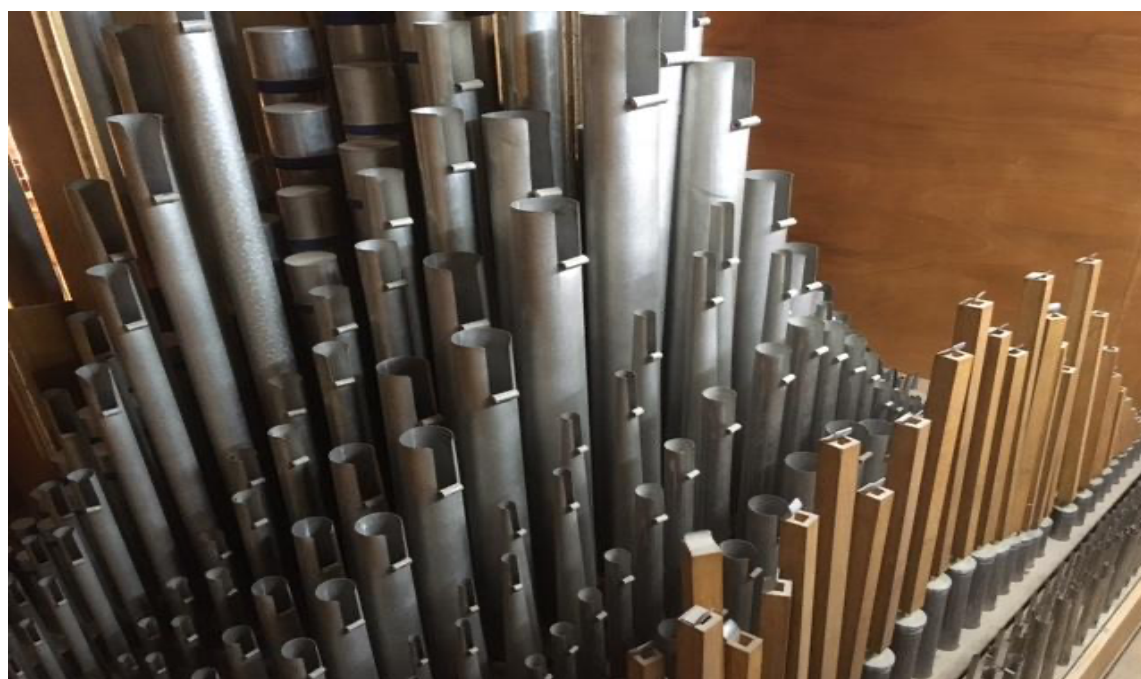

The depth is 2.25 m. In addition, there is the console with bench and pedal keyboard with approx. 1.20 m.

I. Manual

The II. manual is located in the middle of the organ in a closed swell box.
The pipes here are divided into C and Cs side

Pedals

On the right side, standing in front of the organ, is the pedals, also arranged chromatically from outside to inside.

The wind chests are on a light metal stand, the sound mechanism is solidly built and works well. The bellows system and the wind supply via cardboard conduits are sufficiently dimensioned and still in good condition.

There is a need for work replacing the pallets. These are worn out and are currently causing wind noise.

The electric action works without any serious problems, but the electrical cables would have to be additionally secured in the event of a conversion in order to meet today's requirements.

Lower case

The console is still in good condition and shows normal signs of wear.

All organ parts are dirty and need cleaning. The veneered organ case is free of major damage, scratches or scuffs.
